

Many Farm Related Jobs Now Available

CORVALLIS, Ore. — (INS) — America doesn't need as many workers "down on the farm" as it used to, but it does require thousands more trained workers than ever before for farm-related jobs.

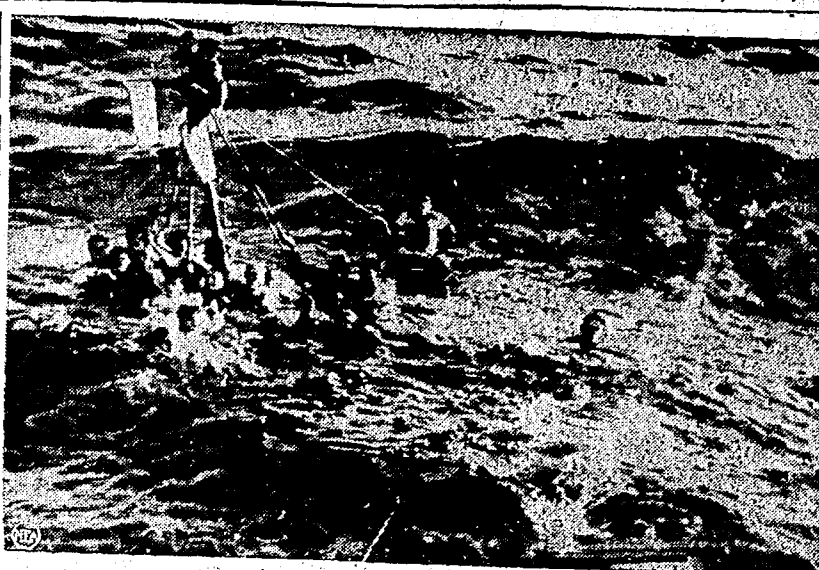

Any many of these jobs are going begging for lack of applicants, says F. E. Price, dean of agriculture at Oregon State College.

Price says opportunities for college graduates in agricultural fields are brightest in history, despite the declining numbers of actual farm workers needed to produce food and fiber for this country.

He points out that the eight million farm workers today represent only about one-third of the number actually involved in agriculture and related industries.

Few young people are aware, Price says, of such opportunities as these:

Agricultural research, in which more than $300,000,000 is spent each year; county agent and farm organization jobs; high school and college agricultural teachings; farm banking and credit and credit and agricultural insurance and land appraisal; farm machinery and equipment; food processing and feed manufacturing; pesticides and herbicides; farm reporting and advertising for pub-

Good Old Days Had Funny Ads

BIG BEAR, Calif.—(M)—The Old Miners Days celebration brought out an edition of the Old Miner's Gazette which contained these ads:

"We clean yore dirty corsets, spats and camisoles. Trousers creased, front and back, Colman Cleaners."

"Wawona Boarding House. Swimmin' hole filled with sheep dip. Miners, burros and coyotes welcome."

"Flat beer, bumpy billiard tables, awful food . . . but good conversation at The Wheel."

"Claim jumpin' done legal like. See our escrow department. Sure Thing McGrath."

"Three cornered levis for little miners at Grace's Baby Shop."

"Ladies—Your hair warshed and blowed dry. Painless hairdos. Jensen's saloon of tonsorial artistry."

Great Improvement

Modern paints are not only easy to apply, but they dry quickly and have high hiding power. They also have great durability. Many of them also have high washability and relatively little paint odor.

Twilight Time Most Dangerous

CHICAGO — "Twilight Time" was immortalized in a once-popular song.

But safety men of today would just as soon forget the "twilight time" of 1956—as usual the most dangerous time of day in traffic.

More fatal traffic accidents and more auto mishaps of all kinds occurred from 4-8 p. m., than during any other four hours of the day.

The just-published 1957 edition of "Accident Facts," the National Safety Council's statistical yearbook, shows that a fourth of all traffic deaths and 29 per cent of all auto accidents occurred from 4-8 p. m.

New Mexico Spot For Finding Meteors

CHICO HILLS, N. M. (INS)—If you're interested in the study of meteorites you might join a group of people in Chico Hills in northeastern New Mexico.

Chico Hills is full of meteorites, and most of them are located in a 100-square mile area. The University of New Mexico's Institute of Meteoritics, for example, has systematically combed the rugged hills for the past six years, and has alerted inhabitants in the area "to keep their eyes peeled" for stony or iron fragments that might have come from the heaven.

On March 6, 1951 a meteorite did fall from the heavens, a giant nickel-iron one. UM meteoricist Dr. Lincoln La Paz returned to the campus recently from the Chico Hills area with more than 50 bonafide meteorites, most discovered by residents of the area.

Milk Truckers Summoned To Court Hearing

BALTIMORE (AP)—A milk truck drivers union accused of illegal actions during an organizing period in Southern Maryland has been ordered to appear in Federal Court next Friday for an injunction hearing.

The complaint was filed by the National Labor Relations Board against Local 246 of the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employees, a Teamsters Union affiliate, with offices in Washington.

The complaint accused union men of going to a dairy farm supplying milk to Mayco, Inc., of Lexington Park, a milk distributor, and preventing the loading of a Mayco truck by farm employees.

The order was signed yesterday by Federal District Judge W. Calvin Chesnut.

Chores Split Aid Mothers

CHICAGO (INS)—Working mothers are delegating authority in getting the family wash done—much in the same way that business data is collected and weighed.

Or so reports Margaret Spader, director of home service for the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association.

In surveying job-holding mothers, Miss Spader found they are dividing responsibilities in getting laundry in and out of automatic laundry appliances. She reported:

"Younger children are being assigned pickup and delivery duties while older children who can read are given the job of operating the appliances."

In this 1957 method, said Miss Spader, "Mothers are limiting their responsibility to administrative details—sorting clothes and deciding which temperature, soap or detergents and drying times are best for particular articles of clothing."

Pool, Once Luxury, Becoming Hazard

CHICAGO (INS)—The backyard swimming pool—once a symbol of great luxury—has become a common hazard.

The American Municipal Association has found that with so many pools being built these days, many cities are requiring fences with self-closing gates to prevent children from falling into them.

Onetime Private New Legion Commander

By International News Service

A handsome, articulate onetime private from suburban Chicago is the new national commander of the country's largest organization of war veterans.

He's John S. Gleason Jr., who took over leadership of the American Legion at the close of the annual convention in Atlantic City yesterday.

Gleason is the proud father of six sons, and all of them were on hand to hear him tell the convention that one of the great tasks before the Legion is to preserve family life.

"We owe it to your youth of today—as parents and citizens—to make available the best that modern science and education have to offer," he said. "We also owe it to them to instill within them some of the old-fashioned values—values that may go out of style from time to time, but can never die or our American way of life itself will die."

The stocky, graying Gleason is vice president of the First National Bank of his native Chicago. A graduate of Notre Dame, he took post-graduate courses in banking at Harvard and the University of Wisconsin.

He enlisted in the Army as a private after Pearl Harbor and came out a lieutenant colonel five years later. He won the Silver Star and the Bronze Star with two oak leaf clusters during combat in the Pacific.

Since the war Gleason has been busy with a host of civic and military activities—and, of course, his growing family. He has worked for the Boy and Girl Scouts, was vice chairman of National Brotherhood Week and vice chairman and treasurer of the Mayor's Chicago Youth Foundation.

Gleason helped reorganize the Illinois National Guard and since 1951 has served as national vice chairman of the Legion's National Rehabilitation Commission. In May 1956, the Senate confirmed his nomination as brigadier general in the Army Reserve.

The new commander lives at 735 Sheridan Road in Winnetka, just north of Chicago, with his wife, Mary Jane, and their six offspring—Jack, Dan, Dick, Tom, Dave and Marty.

Headwork Good For Bad Dummy

By OSWALD JACOBY

West's overall turned out to be most expensive. He didn't get doubled or anything like that, but it gave William Grieve of Boston the clues that enabled him to romp home with a small slam.

West opened the Jack of hearts and Bill did not like the dummy.

Those three small spades were most annoying cards to show up there. Of course there was a simple play for the hand. He could draw trumps, lead a club to dummy's queen and return a club and finesse his ten spot.

Should East hold the Jack of clubs, that play would allow him to discard one of those spades on the King of clubs.

Bill decided that West would hold both the ace and Jack of clubs for his overall and that the simple play would not work.

He also noted a most complicated play to make the hand against that holding and operated as follows:

A diamond was led to dummy's

Dr. Strien Selected For Health Post

Wilkinson Opposes
And Recommends
Dr. Jones For Job

Dr. Ton van Strien today was appointed county health officer by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners with Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson voting "No" to the order.

Dr. Strien is presently Charles County health officer and will assume his duties here after his appointment is approved by the Maryland State Health Department. Dr. Strien has been recommended by the state agency for the post.

Wilkinson submitted a statement at today's session in which he moved that Dr. Arthur F. Jones be named to the post.

Says Jones Qualified
Wilkinson said Dr. Jones is qualified in every way for the post and was born here and his wife is also a native of Cumberland and a member of a prominent family. He also said Dr. Jones' father was a practicing physician here for more than 50 years.

Wilkinson said Dr. Jones served four years as county physician, was in charge of the VD clinic four years here and served in the armed forces. In addition, he has been Garrett County health officer for approximately four years.

It was pointed out by Wilkinson that Dr. Strien will be paid an annual salary of $14,000, which, so far as he knows, is the highest salary received by any employee of the county.

Backed By State
Both Commissioners William H. Lemmert and James Orr said they were acting on the recommendation of the State Department of Health in appointing Dr. Strien. They said the appointee met with the board on Tuesday and the interview showed he was qualified for the post. Dr. Strien also has a degree in public health, which Dr. Jones does not have, they added.

Wilkinson said the appointment of Dr. Strien was "ridiculous and an outrage" in view of Dr. Jones' qualifications and long residence here. He then asked Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the board, if the county commissioners could not appoint whom they pleased to the position.

Getty explained the State Department of Health, under the statutes, appoints the deputy state medical officer for the county and the county commissioners, acting on the advice and approval of the state agency, name the county health officer. The two positions are held normally by one person, he added.

Wilkinson then stated that "no one comes to my defense, not even the attorney." Getty replied: "That's unfair." "I have never refused at any time to do anything you asked me."

Others Had No Degrees
This followed Wilkinson's statement that Getty had not gone to Westernport to see Mayor Okey Michael about a health problem in connection with a sewer line. Getty replied that he had written the mayor about the situation. Getty said he would gladly see Michael personally, if Wilkinson so desired.

Wilkinson commented also that Dr. Winter R. Frantz, who retired as county health officer last May and as far as he knew, the late Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, had no degrees in public health when they held the county health officer's post.

Commissioner Lemmert said that the Case Commission in its recommendations for revamping the health department setup in the counties included a provision for the public health degree.

State health officials in recommending Dr. Strien said he had a degree in public health from Johns Hopkins University and would lecture at the University of Pittsburgh School of Public Health and also cooperate with the university in a field training program in Allegany County to expand its public health program.

Two Hurt Hands In Accidents

One man was treated and a youth admitted to local hospitals last night with almost identical hand injuries.

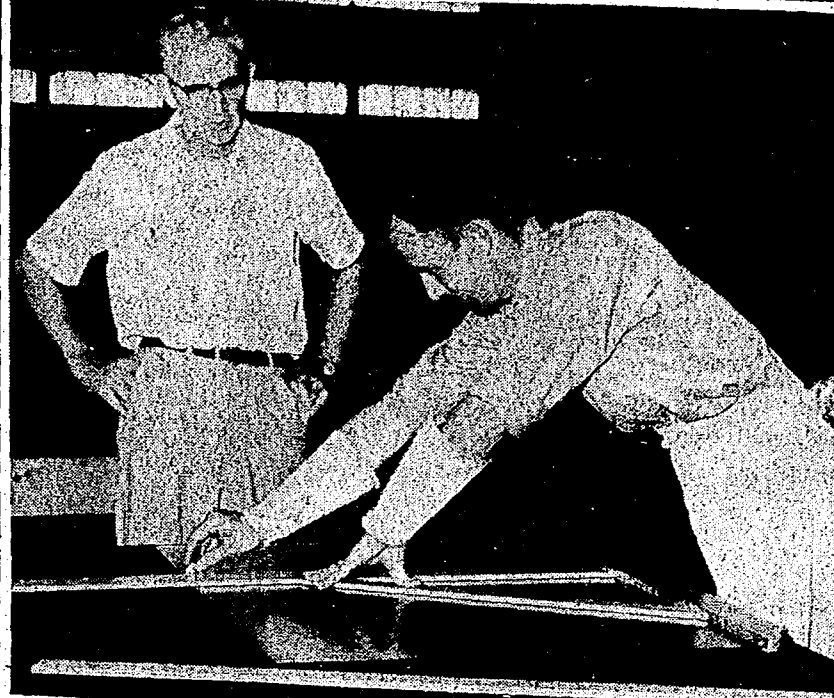

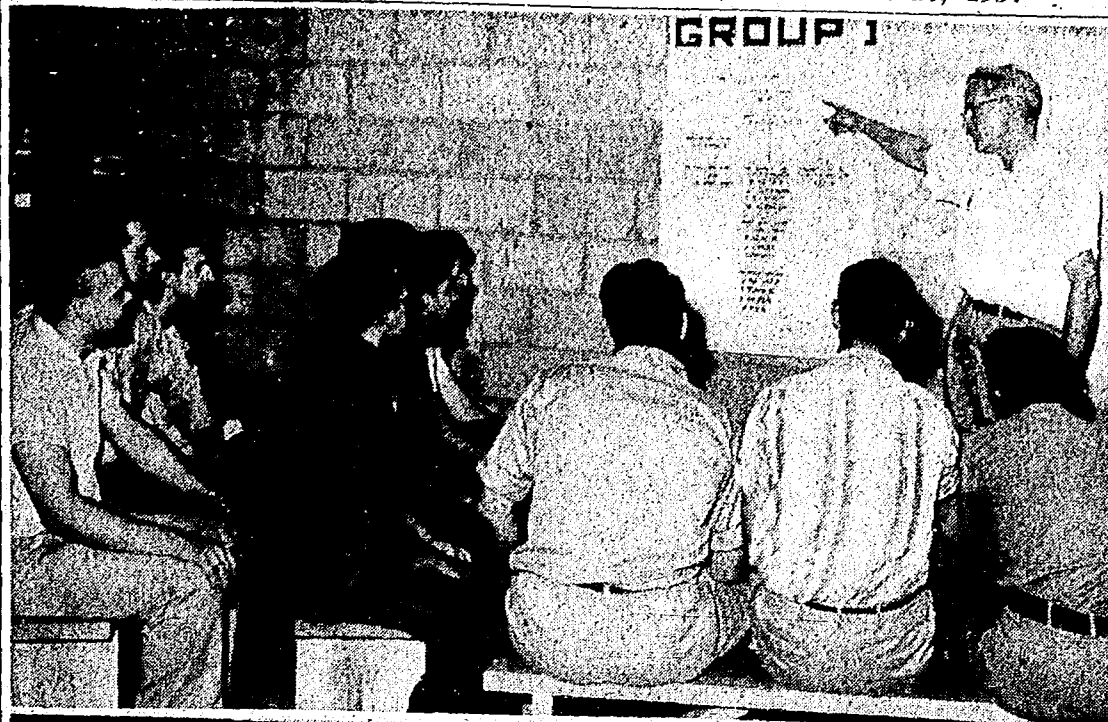

John Helmstetter, 16, of Cresaptown, was admitted to Sacred Heart Hospital after his left thumb was mangled badly when caught in a power mower. His condition is satisfactory.

John O. Clark, 61, of McCoolle, was treated at Memorial Hospital, after his left thumb was severed while planing a board on a joiner at his home.

The membership committee of the West Side School Parent-Teacher Association last night reported at the meeting in the school that the organization has 355 members.

The homeroom of Miss Helen Kreiling won first prize in the attendance contest.

Road Reports Received By County Board

Reports were given to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners today by J. Walker Chapman, roads supervisor, on a number of road problems.

Chapman said he had conferred with Joseph Downey, maintenance supervisor for the Board of Education, over a surface water problem on Seldom Seen Road near Valley High School in Lonaconing. Chapman said a pipe under the road is too small to carry off the water.

Chapman also said he has suggested that a temporary road in the rear of the school be relocated so that the surface water will not run off and into the boiler room of the building. The condition was brought to the attention of the board recently by James S. Getty, attorney, acting on behalf of the Valley High School Improvement Association.

It was also reported by Chapman that the Western Maryland Railway has agreed to clean out a stream in the Lonaconing area which has been causing some damage to homes nearby. The county will also clean out a portion of the stream. A culvert under the railway tracks has been blocked at times and this causes the water to flow onto private property.

At the request of Dewey Llewellyn, who transports a number of children to school in a station wagon, the Miller Road will be repaired and a pipe installed under the road to alleviate a bad drainage condition, according to Chapman.

Chapman also said a bad drainage condition in the vicinity of Hartsock Lane, which runs off U.S. Route 40 on Martins Mountain, will be checked by the State Roads Commission. He reported that several drainage pipes installed in connection with the Route 40 improvement project were not placed as had been indicated on preliminary plans submitted to his office by the SRC.

B&O Continues Accident Probe

The B&O Railroad is continuing its investigation into the cause of the derailment of the National Limited at Tunnelton yesterday.

Spokesmen for the Cumberland Division said the cause of the mishap has not been revealed, and the amount of damage has not been set.

Four Diesel power units and five coaches left the tracks, and eight women passengers were taken to Parkersburg and Granton hospitals.

County Joins CD Program

Allegany County has joined others in Western Maryland in a Civil Defense Survival Study Project, William G. Barger, CD director, announced today.

Making the announcement as the county is engaged in observing Civil Defense Week, Barger said the study is an extension of an agreement between the State CD Agency and Federal Civil Defense Administration. Its objective is formulation of an operational survival plan for the state and its political subdivisions designed to save lives in case of natural disaster or enemy attack.

Target date for completion of the project is June 30, 1958 by which time Barger will submit the plan of operation to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

The project has a paid staff, headed by Arthur L. Shreve, colonel U. S. Army (retired), and former chief of the Military

Glass Plant Workers Get Full Program

Operations Differ From Others Due To New Equipment

(Editor's Note: This is the third of four articles explaining the procedure the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company followed at its new plant here in obtaining its employees, many of whom are from this area and inexperienced in plate glass work.)

By C. A. LANCASTER
Times Staff Writer

The training program at the North Branch Plant of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company is unique in that hourly workers are being instructed in much the same manner as their supervisors were several months ago.

Because of the newness of the plant and its machinery, the supervisors have had to be trained on the job.

In many cases they could not be sent to other Pittsburgh plants for on-the-job instruction because the equipment at other locations is different than that installed at the local plant.

These supervisors, after mastering their assignments, then train hourly employees in their own departments.

Takes Plant Tour
The new employee after his first day of basic indoctrination, is introduced to his department. There, he spends one or two days on departmental orientation, depending upon the complexity of his operation. In this Phase IV portion of the training program, his foreman takes him on a tour of the huge plant, and then a detailed tour of his respective department. He learns about departmental processes, rules, promotion and work schedules and safety and housekeeping. Provisions of the labor agreement are explained and discussed.

After receiving this thorough departmental training, the employee starts on-the-job training, or Phase V as it is called. His supervisor trains him on his specific occupation through the use of job breakdowns.

The employee is trained in each step of an operation, is told and shown how to do it, and it is explained why he performs each step.

Getty also reported on a visit to Pershing Drive in Potomac Park in connection with a surface water drainage problem. He was accompanied by Chapman.

He and Chapman said the water drainage problem might be solved by installation of a catch basin and installation of several hundred feet of pipe. The board asked that a study be made of the problem to determine what would be the best action to take.

Constable Will Check Airport

The Municipal Airport Commission, meeting last night in the office of Mayor Roy W. Eves, made plans to hire a West Virginia constable for a limited time to check on law violators at the Wiley Ford port.

The commission with Chairman A. J. Weber presiding, authorized a member, W. Donald Smith, to enter into an agreement with Ralph Wirgman, chief engineer of a local radio station, to make a monthly check of the airport homing beacon located in Constitution Park. Wirgman would be paid $150 a year.

Commission members also approved plans to enlarge living quarters at the airport with cost not to exceed $1,500.

Scrap Yard Regulations Are Prepared

Board Has Power To Approve Sites For Establishments

Gorman E. Getty, attorney to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, outlined some of the provisions of the new law regulating junk yard operations in the county.

Getty said he is in process of drawing up the set of regulations and they include provisions for no burning, except by acetylene torch; no stockpiling of junk beyond one truck load; and absence of any objection by residents living in the neighborhood.

The new statute gives the board the right to determine if the location is a proper one. An application is pending on a site on Christie Road, a short distance beyond the Willowbrook Road.

An inspection of the site will be made by J. Walker Chapman, roads supervisor to determine if the location is suitable and there is no objection from residents living nearby.

Getty also reported that drawing up the final draft of the new county dog law has been delayed by absence of the rough draft. It was submitted to officials of the Allegany County Animal Welfare League some time ago for their recommendations and has not yet been returned.

He explained that only one copy of the rough draft exists and it would be impossible to have another drawn up without much inconvenience. He said he hoped to obtain the one the league has in the near future so that the commissioners may act on it.

Getty also reported on a visit to Pershing Drive in Potomac Park in connection with a surface water drainage problem. He was accompanied by Chapman.

He and Chapman said the water drainage problem might be solved by installation of a catch basin and installation of several hundred feet of pipe. The board asked that a study be made of the problem to determine what would be the best action to take.

Firm Tells Of Plan To Move Plant

If Frostburg Fails To Raise Fund, Local Site To Be Sought

The Cumberland Undergarment Company today clarified the firm's proposal to move part of its operation to Frostburg.

Maurice Milberg, president of the plant here, said the split operation proposal for a sewing unit at Frostburg and a warehouse and shipping building here is strictly the company's initial plan.

In the event Frostburg cannot raise its goal of $80,000 to have the production section located there, Milberg said he will present a new combined unit proposal to the industrial promotion department of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber Cooperates
Milberg clarified the fact that his company has been in contact with the Chamber of Commerce for a number of months, and said the organization is waiting in readiness on the outcome of this initial step.

And last night 60 members of the union that represents undergarment factory workers met in the Labor Temple to discuss the future of the plant's 325 employees and to set in motion a drive to keep the company in Cumberland.

Joseph V. Burke, secretary of Local 26, Rubber Workers Union, and state vice president of the AFL-CIO, who was asked to preside, named a committee to meet with local AFL-CIO officials Monday at 7:30 p. m. for a fact-finding session.

A meeting will then be sought with the company, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Mayor and Council.

Meanwhile, the Chamber of Commerce issued this statement in connection with the company's plans:

"It is simply not true," that the Chamber of Commerce has done nothing about the situation. The Chamber is now, and has for several months past, been fully aware of the situation. We have frequently conferred with representatives of the company and have given careful consideration to the many factors involved.

"We have several times asked the company to tell us definitely what its building requirements will be. We have made estimates as to the possible costs of various types of building. We have considered several types of construction.

"The situation has become further complicated because of the company's uncertainty as to whether one or two buildings will be needed and where they will be located. There have been at least two probabilities. One is that a distribution center might be located in Cumberland, and the manufacturing facility in Frostburg. This would necessitate two sets of plans and participation by two different communities. The other probability is that two buildings, or one building combining both facilities, might be built in Cumberland.

Need Information
"Before we can take further action, this uncertainty must be resolved by the company. We need to know whether we are to deal with one or two buildings. We need to know the type of building desired and the amount of footage required. We need blueprints and specifications.

"The matter of financing must also be considered. If it will be necessary for the community to participate financially in providing the facilities needed, the community ought to be told what is expected of it. How much money must the community raise? To what extent will the company participate?

"The company has told us it wanted us to do nothing until it could be ascertained whether the people of Frostburg could raise a sufficient amount of money to build a facility in their community.

"A drive to raise this money has been under way in Frostburg for some time. Apparently, the question as to whether the money can be raised will be answered soon.

The time for opening bids on replacing the entrance and doorway at the Allegany County Infirmary arrived today but there were no offers.

An order for the new doorway and entrance was passed several weeks ago by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners with Commissioner Charles N. Wilkinson objecting on the grounds of the cost.
